LOCAL PLAYERS MAKE BIG HIT

Gibson Family Reunion with Numerous Pretty Choruses and Many Funny Situations Captivates Big Audience.

With pretty costumes, pretty songs, pretty girls and good looking boys "The Gibson Family Reunion" produced by one hundred local people on Thursday evening with beautiful stage effects proved one of the best home talent entertainments ever given in Gettysburg. An audience of almost seven hundred people enjoyed the evening which was given for the benefit of the Gettysburg Young Men's Christian Association.

While the play itself amassed the big house the chorus numbers were delightful. The costumes were the prettiest ever seen in a local production; the music was most tuneful and the work of the many choruses kept the people busy applauding throughout the entire second act. The eventful closed with a brilliantly illuminated on-one-scene which created a beauty anything of the kind which has ever been attempted in a Gettysburg local talent play.

As a sort of curtain raiser fifty little girls, all wearing dainty white dresses with crimson hair ribbons, sang "Hail Bonnie Boo" to the delight of the audience. A score of little boys in blue overalls and big straw hats followed and brought down the house with a game of leap-frog. Chorus numbers led "Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay" with a chorus of eighteen other girls dressed in white with red aprons and red caps. These little maidens were followed by a big crowd in a humor for the reminiscences of the show and the chorus work scarcely have had a better opening.

The first act of the Gibson Family Reunion opened with the Gibson family and servants preparing for the reunion. Miss Maud Miller, as Mrs. Gibson, had one of the most important parts in the cast and filled it to the entire satisfaction of all. Mr. Durbin Hess, the bespeaked bachelor of the cast, George Hartman as the Duke of Waterbury, looked and acted his part acceptably.

The entire play was a comedy and the principal comedy parts were taken by Miss Anna Mangus as Mrs. Gibson's negress who trained the cast and Samuel Lowman as Grover Cleveland Gibson. Miss Mangus as "Molly Kelly" the Irish maid and Mr. Lowman as "Billy G'Lee" a son of the Emerald Isle were big favorites and made one of the merry hits of the evening. Mr. Lowman's solo "Get but Neve's Class in a Cloud" was encored.

Other parts taken acceptably were Miss Phyllis Gibson, Miss Ruth Boehm; Miss Christine Gibson, Miss Gertrude Slaber; Ted Lecniza, Marion Baker, Miss Ernest Ziegler; Miss Dorothy Miss Margaretta Weaver; Col. Gibson, Calvin Hartman; the Country Cousin, Miss Lillie Daugherty.

The first act closed with the male chorus led by Carlton Hartman, "Tell the Matter with Gibson, 'and the second act opened to the chorus singing "Bright Eyes." Mrs R. E. Zinn sang the verses. With a chorus of eight attractive girls in cowboy costume Miss Lollie Hamilton led the sensational finishing way "Texas," the number being given in true Western style.

"Military Mary Ann" by eight girls in fairground's garb and eight boys in uniform proved another attractive feature the musical song hound will give while the drills also took well.

"The Automobile Chorus" was the one of the best musical numbers of the evening, six young ladies in khaki suits representing the automobile, parasols the wheels, while lamps, auto horn and other accessories were also in evidence. The "machine" moved about the stage to the pretty music of the song with the chorus by the six young ladies and Master's solo by the chauffeur. The light effects were good and, although, the second act closed on the one scene which has been given here.

With a chorus of good looking girls and in pretty Jo pansee costume Miss Helen Reap sang the chorus number "Japanese Love Song." Pretty light effects added much to the number. "I Want a Gibson Man" by eight girls in black gowns and eight girls in peasants with eight men appropriately dressed formed another of the cast of the musical comedy.

COUNTY'S OLDEST RESIDENT DIES

Littlestown Woman Dies Two Days after Passing her Ninety Sixth Milestone. Remembered Visit of Lafayette and Other Events.

Mrs. Cassandra Barker, the oldest resident of Littlestown, died at her home in Littlestown Tuesday. She celebrated her 96th birthday on Sunday.

Mrs. Barker was a remarkable lady and possessed all her faculties until the end came. She talked freely, though with clearness, silent events which occurred in 96 and 96 years ago.

She was born in 1814, on a farm near what is now the Littlestown limits of York, and was the daughter of Daniel Dietz. She owned a large tract and nursery near Ziegler's church, North Codorus township. In 1868, seventy seven years ago, she was married to Joseph Barker, who died 10 years ago. In 1843, ninety years ago, she entered a parochial school near her home, where she acquired her education during the succeeding eight years.

Mrs Barker had a wonderful memory, and distinctly recalled the visit of General Lafayette to York in 1825. He passed through the town from Baltimore to York in a stage on his way to Harrisburg. At that time the town was considered a large place, but had fewer than 5000 inhabitants. She had fought under the French General in visions of "the battle of the Nile" and "Battle of the Nation." Most of the Revolutionary soldiers had died before she left York to see Lafayette, and he held a reception in the old Court House. She stood near the present site of the Colonial Theatre to see him.

At the time of her birth James Monroe was President, there were 24 United States, was serving h s second term. Napoleon Bonaparte was twenty two years since inaugurated.

Joseph Barker, her husband, built the house in which she died in Littlestown in 1856, and for a period of 20 years conducted a hotel in the building.

She is survived by two sons—Albert F. Barker, of Littlestown, and Frank H. Barker, of Littlestown; and four daughters—Mrs. Noah Hoffman, of Littlestown, and Mrs. Sarah Hoffman, Mrs. Jane Hoffman and Mrs. Charles T. Kump, of Hanover. She is also survived by 18 grand-children and 20 great-grandchildren.

Funeral Friday at 11 a. m. Services at the house. Interment in Mt. Carmel cemetery, Littlestown.

GOT THREE DEER

The Bendersville Gun Club on Thursday killed three deer and one was wounded a fourth. The first two bucks were killed early in the morning, the one weighing 265 and the other 190 pounds. The third was killed Thursday by John Schreiber, a member of the club, in a clearing about a mile and a half in that section for several years, having twelve prongs and weighing 160 pounds.

ENTERTAINING LAFAYETTES

On Wednesday the Musselman Canning Company entertained 175 employees in their plant at Biglerville. The entertainment time as spent in games and refreshments and at 8:30 o'clock the players presented the management with a handsome silver service tray and a parlor lamp and extended a vote of thanks for the pleasant entertainment during the season and for the respect shown the employees. THE VOGUE

Eugene Field's poem graphical, "The Wolf," a drama of the Hudden Bay country, will be one of the most prominent successes of the season. It deals with the rugged manhood of the Northwest country which resists and defeats the plans of an adventurer who attempts to rob the girl of the love of the pluck of the dramatic profession. The production which the Lafayette Theatre takes pleasure in offering it Thursday evening, Dec. 1.

Lloyd VanDoren, of New Germantown, New Jersey, is visiting in town with friends.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON ENDS

College Foot Ball Team Defeats their Third Rival in Exciting Game. All Championship Games are Captured. Seasons's Record.

The Gettysburg College foot ball team closed a successful season on Thursday afternoon when they took down their old friends, Franklin and Marshall, by the score of 9 to 8 in what was perhaps the most exciting game of the season.

Gettysburg scored first in the second period when Captain Bowersox kicked a goal the ball and ran for a touchdown, kicking the goal with ease. In the third, neared goal when a forward pass was thrown over the goal line. Gettysburg was getting the ball and netting the blow and white two points.

Franklin and Marshall scored a touchdown when they secured the ball on a blocked kick, made a big gain on a forward pass and secured a few yards on line plunging. Score was 6 to 5 in favor of Gettysburg line for the score. The goal was missed making the score 6 and M. & G. Gettysburg 6. Near the end of the last period Dupuis kicked a field goal by dropping the ball over the bar making the score 9 to 6.

Gettysburg's superb defense when the ball was on her own goal was the big features of the game and prevented the Franklin and Marshall team from scoring. The games played this season resulted.

BATTLED WITH WOUNDED BUCK

Caledonia Scene of Battle between Wounded Deer and Hunter who Shot the Animal. Caledonia Club Gets Big Bear.

Returning hunters tell of the thrilling encounter of an Allentown hunter near Caledonia when he was attacked by a wounded deer. He brought down a big buck with one shot in the heart, landing it on the thrust. When he got it in he found he had left his knife at camp. Just then the dare rose to his lips and shaking the hunter, pawing him and cutting his face and body with great fury.

After painfully lacerating its would be slayer the buck dashed off into the woods.

The Cashtown Hunting Club on Tuesday scored one of the biggest buck shot in the vicinity of their camp when they secured a bear and a pair of deer. The animal ground a difficult task. Two efforts being required before it was finally brought down.

W. H. Hoffman, the hunter, has the pasnies of the head and antlers of the deer and the Hospitz Gossip Services. Mr. Smith mounded a buck near Cashtown and treated it a day by the blood trail. At the end of the trail he found the deer had been dressed by a hunter who had left the animal on the trail. An argument ensued as to who had killed the deer, but it was not that the victors took the carcass and promised the Club a big feast.

While J. M. Rice and Gilbert Fisher were sitting near a tree eating their beer a bullet hit the tree about three feet above their heads.

W. S. Hoof, of Chambersburg, was hunting with Jesse Stover and Roy Hoffman, of Cashtown, when he shot and got a spike buck.

Harry Hoffman killed a 7 00 o'clock. J. A. Sellenbarger, a member of the Bendersville Hunting Club, had a big pronged buck at Rocky Mountain Springs. The animal weighed about 180 pounds.

DUPLICATE LEE IN BURGLARY

Head of Alleged Chicken Stealing Trio is now Accused of Being Concerned in Larceny of Goods from Store in Hagerstown.

That John Lee, who escaped from the Adams county jail in June, and who was charged with Upper Snyder and John Rippley with chicken stealing, was implicated in the robbery of a store in Hagerstown, is the story learning in the theory of people in the Maryland town.

The hardware store of Schnebel, Eberly and Company in Hagerstown was burglarized at an early hour Thursday morning and since then, to the burglars are looking but it is generally thought that Lee was implicated in the affair. The women with whom he was last seen in the city exposed to know something about the robbery. Both are said to be in hiding on South Mountain.

In addition to some merchandise, the thief or thieves got $61.14 in cash from the cash register. The money was in quarters, dimes, halves and 100 pennies, which had been left in the register for change.

So far as the members of the firm are able to tell the thieves secured no revolvers, 36 razors, 12 lumpskill watches, 34 knives, 16 pairs of scissors, 8 electric heaters and a large and a few boxes of various kinds. All of the articles, with the exception of the guns, were in glass cases in the front part of the store, near the door, and the register stands.

Now comes the news that the women is wanted in Chicago by some creditors who say they stole clothes to be supposed to have hidden in the hills. Chief Rowland, of Hagerstown, is looking into the matter and hunting the case.

Lee has proved the most elusive escaped prisoner which this section has known for many years. Though seen several times and though the general location of his whereabouts is known, efforts at capture have proved unavailing.

HUNTER HAS ACCIDENT

Claude Haugh, a hunter near Cleaton, was accidentally discharged by an accident to his shooting iron.

While patiently awaiting for the approach of a rabbit, he noticed about a block bush that he eluded the most amazing in that vicinity while he was passing a few moments having some sport in the squirrel line. Haugh, whose cap Mr. Haugh had gotten possession of, and laid it down on the ground on top of a pile of sand near the trolley station at Cleaton with the result that the end of his gun turned had fitted some wet wood around the end of the barrel and to make a target of it and blood away.

Mr. Haugh was surprised to see about two inches of the gun barrel fly into space into the air, and a ring of blood intact.

The shot from the gun went almost straight into the air and came down, upon the roof with a resulting sound.

It was discovered that the bursting of the gun was caused by the loose, was not becoming packed in the muzzle as the weapon.

This put Mr. Haugh out of business for the time being and he is congratulating himself that a more serious accident was averted.

ON STATE LANDS

The extent to which the State's forestry reserves are being utilized for camping parties is shown by the fact that the State forest reserve in Garrett county there had been issued so far this year 1,000 permits, representing 6,000 persons, many of them boaters.

The permits are issued by the rangers for the purposes of recreation but not for hunting. Each of the properties which the State has acquired to date and which are under the control of the police have proved to be popular camping grounds, and under the strict supervision of the State Forestry Department and Commissioner Robert Garrett says that there is every indication of the "new forest fire wardens" law which was passed by the last legislature, and which has been commended both in manner and destroying forest fires.

Some of the State reserves are well back in the mountains and are not easily adjacent to the State game preserves, which are under the control of the State Game Commission and closed at all times to hunting. The fact that the game authorities to secure sufficient rangers to patrol the boundaries to create another game preserve. That the game commission have been a success in propagation of game of all kinds, especially deer.

RECORD STANDS AFTER 25 YEARS

Cumberland—"25 years ago," is the title of Judge Duffy, in the following item:

"John A. Althoff, of Mathiesyne town, Garrett county, has one of the pert stigmatizers, performed the feat of rolling 12 balls down the alley and in 38 minutes. It was said he could have made 100 rigger as time with ease and frequently made 1,000 in ten hours."

Mr. Althoff was one "the best men being employed in the factory of F. B. Shaw & Co., in Mathiesyne town, at this time.

Upon inquiry, we have learned that Mr. Althoff is yet a century age, is still a record, and that there are a few Cumberland bowlers who can equal that.

LAST NIGHT FOR FALL BEAUTIES

Chrysanthemum growers in Gettysburg had their handsome flowers cut by Sunday night's cold and as a result the crop of beauties for this year is about over. The cold caught the flowers notwithstanding the fact that they were covered with carpet and straw to save them having eaten the shelter.

POOR SHOWING OF FOOT BALL TEAM

The Indian scrub eleven played the Gettysburg scrub team on Union Field on Saturday, the Indians defeating the Gettysburg 'crosity was sent to be the first half of the game. Under rainy field and weather conditions, and the game was not interesting. The Indians being were unable to score only two touchdowns against the Indians. Score 12 to 0.

For some reason, the varsity played a listless, loose, slow game. There was little or no interference as their work. The backing was poor, and altogether the game was a failure. The Indians looked good, playing the game with F. and M. There seems to be no question at all that the Gettysburg men will have to wake up and work if they are to maintain their present reputation to the end of the season.

In the third and fourth quarters the Gettysburg scrubs were put in, and showed up better than the varsity.

The referee did not have a good day. He was slow in getting about the field and was not always in position as a newspaper man was to watch the play.

How I Won

by GROVER S. GRIFFIN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When I chose journalism for a profession I did so because I had literary tastes and a facility for writing. I soon found that the principal ingredient in the success of a newspaper and especially with on the lower runs of the ladder, is getting ahead of the other fellow. I had not been in the routine work of collecting news and writing it long before I was impressed with something happened; in other words, I was a born reporter.

The president of the United States was shot in Washington. I was then there at war, to settle their differences. I was sent to Cuba to cover the representatives of the two countries to meet at Portsmouth. The American newspapers are not used to what we are in Europe in getting ahead of one another in news of matters pertaining to government and diplomacy or my opportunity would not have occurred. Being on the spot I was well posted, had no acquaintance calculated to give me information, and had the disinterested myself in my profession. I was a reporter and not a diplomat. I was not even a statement concerning the turmoil the news as it came out, but I was able to get the gossip and the sculptions of the distinguished participants.

But a wild dream came into my head. It occurred to me that if the czar's young several hundred newspaper correspondents would get at the treaty of peace, if one were made, and interview it if he could, that it could be published before any other newspaper could. I was then not a special famous on a newspaper man. And the responsibility was all the greater on me. On my journey to Portsmouth I met the czar's train and saw some of the Russian representatives. He had left Portsmouth and was returning to St. Petersburg. I made the acquaintance of several of the party and succeeded in getting a few words out of them. I might possibly make a few dollars out of my trip to give me the news for a consideration. But I knew that I had attempted to get anything out of a Japanese in that country. To do so I knew would be much more amenable to the pay of my own people.

I fell into conversation with one of the czar's party. Without telling him I gave him a cigar and several drinks of whisky and soda. I brought him to my cause and found a willing listener. He was a Russian and had a Russian's love for a cigar and drink. I found it time to send it to my peer for the Russian delegation and other people with.

It may seem remarkable that I should have offered so small a sum for what I expected to get. But I had collected from all the money that had been given me for expenses and had to pay for my tickets, and he had no knowledge that there was a world of information elsewhere. Besides this, I had no idea that I could succeed, but dreamed that there would be any success in the matter. I had given him a cigar on the train, but I had to give him eight to be necessary for me to get the information I desired from him to me. This was the most delicate part of the matter. I knew that the conversation once met and proceeded to the discussion of the treaty matter, the secrets would be watched carefully. If I should offer him money he would take one meet a day at the hotel. He would not receive the money, but would wait outside the dining room door. I was in a dilemma for a time, myself and, going our before him, pick up the money. Finally I hit upon the taking mine. At the next meal we had a bottle of wine with us.

With the cars I was not only in touch with the Russian Tokadoff and I did not have to pay him for the news. I got the articles of the treaty were being written and was informed that as soon as an article was written out my boy was sent with it to me. Then I would put a copy of it, written on tissue paper, in my hat, and I would leave after he he possessed.

I was in a remarkable state of anxiety lest the plenipotentiaries should not get the treaty signed before I got my cable for nothing. Besides, I foretold that I would be arrested as soon as I started it at a telegraph office in Portsmouth. I had arranged with the cable company that I should not be able to get it through. I had written out the cable, but I would take a train for some small station and there telegraph it from there.

Finally the plenipotentiaries began discussing the articles one by one. Every day I was expecting to hear that the treaty was signed and that I was appointed for, giving the information to the correspondents. The evening it was signed I got the final articles, rushed to the train, a train for a next station, and the cable of the 11 o'clock a morning operator was clicking its text to my ear.

Here I got home, what I did when I had left it. I was not at my post of position as a newspaper man was to watch.

AN INCUBATOR CAVE.

My brother, in his every one in Leicester in the house, smoke the white setting, the money overseas and the countrymen and get bespeched for it! Also, yes!

Well you deserved it and a good Master to boot. Have you forgot Peter's Syndicate all those years, but been deprived of bachelor chicken by the bar? because Master had a gospel and a Peter's pocket knot and know the the white stebang?

Also, yes!

Brother, there is hoped

Well you receive two pairs of my spectacles would be sent, and my spectacles would be sent, but was impossible, my friend broke the eye, and it's a dimly. It was impossible to send them. Also I had not made ten feet wide.

As much as possible the natural roof was preserved, and the structure was made strong enough to support the trees being pushed in over the top and the roof outside being covered with concrete and packed earth. It is almost

The trees which were left on the entrance to a soft coal mine, and if you do not have a mine you will have better convenience talk it over with your father—he is a lawyer's boss—and get his assistance and advice.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Now, brother, I am sure you will be hayrow for that nice clever hay chaff! Remember, however, that you have newly hatched chicks on to it, and that the feathers and eggshells must be kept out of the way. Remember that they are so good "to build up bone and muscle" that the little birds eat many of them, so do also the lice the spermatozoa of the hen.

Farmers do waste a lot of time, labor and money in unnecessary things. How much easier and cheaper and better it is to have the chicken coop look into cradles by scattering plaster and cement mixture on the floor and using the growing chickens to fertilize the garden instead of having to buy expensively fertilizer.

THE WHITE WASH.

In Presence on the Hudson Bay Company's Boat Sustained.

It is a case in a run of the Hudson Bay company that no wonder be allowed passage on its boats. One day some years ago as a steamer of the company moved out of the waterways most puts a string of white garments was seen on the deck of the boat. The washers were aroused, for to the Indians the appearance of the presence of a woman aboard the boat. Investigation, however, proved to be needed that would come and the washers were allowed to go. The boat docked the line of washing had disappeared and there was no more scandal.

Another one of the incidents told to the captain:

Another one did it happen that you carried a woman passenger this trip?" "Yes, sir," replied the captain, "along the whole voyage," was the indignant answer. "What do you mean?"

"If there was no woman aboard where did all the white wash come from?" was the triumphant reply.

The incident was forgotten for a moment, and then he insisted.

"Why, I'll be hanged if you have been married a year and you don't know a thing with us on this trip? And every day dressed to boot. By having the clean white shirt, no matter how far north we went, and I'll bet you that you saw strung along deck. And, what's more, there was a woman aboard set upon having his London dressed every day. Now, you know the rest. It matter if it is a year out?"—Pearson's.

A MASTER OF METAPHOR.

It Must Have Followed Him to Get This Far Away.

A water consumer in a certain city, who had been annoyed by a leak in his house because he wouldn't pay, wrote to the corporation the following:

"In the matter of shorting off the water connection to my house, there is no fast becoming a regular crystallized mass of ice, and the consequence is it grooves and dent to the spassin of refusing to pay the bill, and I am going to impugn the verity of this indict and I am going to have the water on the tooth of your own deeds.

"If you don't pay in this kind of thing a widowered contagnation of the property will be the consequence and it will require only a spurt to let loose the water. I am a man of family and you persist in hurting the convenience of the community by the unnecessary bounds of collectors thereing for the water. If you persist in this course you know you will have the clearing house of the corporation against you and you will be the victim and guessing the teeth as it rests.

"If you persist in your course I am entitled to receiving coming to one dozen of the corporation's water and the cause of hypocritical compunction in their hearts. Now, gentlemen, I assure you peirene this policy will result in nothing but the loss of the water. I hope the golden egg until you have paid the bill. Then I will remain, I long farewell, to any vanquard proprietary."—Argonaut.

When to Eat Fruit.

To obtain the most benefit from the succulent fruits they should be eaten at the end of the chief meal. Because they are digested more easily if eaten with any meat. They are very acceptable at the end of a meal of meat with bread and butter. Stewed fruits should be eaten with the addition of cream, but not with sugar. Fresh fruits or right stewed prunes half an hour before breakfast are beneficial, as are stewed figs or stewed apples with cream. Bananas, figs and dates are coarse eat into this stewed so that the fruit is not in large pieces and mixed over the stove, are not unlike plum pudding and are very nourishing and easy to digestion. Grapes should never be eaten except at the end of a meal or of the day. Taken when the stomach is empty they are very beneficial, and particularly beneficial fruit.—Family Doctor

Pumpkin Pie.

The greatest allusion to the ruler of the pumpkin pie is made by Washington Irvenner. His official title is "emperor of pumpkin pie." Irving in the old Dutch word for iced or prince and was applied to the ruler of the land. In a triumphal return from Polaris, his majesty was received by the Duke of Yvonder. Since then the Russian monarch has been known as emperor of the parent, and at the congress of Vienna in 1815 the title of emperor of pumpkin pie was admitted by the powers, with the exception of Turkey, who was present as had no precedence over the kings of Christendom.—Boston Evening Transcript.

DELIBERATED ENTIRE NIGHT

Jury in Stoner Case against Hoover and McSherrystown Water Company Gives Verdict of $3,500 Ten Thousand Dollar Damage Suit.

The jury in the case of Charles S Stoner and Catherine G. Stoner against the Hoover and McSherrystown Water Company deliberated from half past nine Monday night until half past five the morning when a verdict was finally agreed upon. At the opening of Court the jury returned their finding of $3500 without interest.

The case was an appeal from a decision made by viewers.

The twelve jurymen struggled for fourteen hours with the case before they finally agreed and during the hours of the night many of them became weary and have retired to another hotel but their more vigilant comrades kept them awake and continued the argument until they arrived at a decision. They then availed their verdict and after breakfast appeared in Court to announce their finding.

OIL MADE SPRING UNNOTICED

Some weeks ago a pipe carrying oil of the Pure Oil Co. across the farm of Isaac Ienke in Hollow Spring, close to Ellen Furney, and the adjoining farm of Isaac's was covered with the thick and disagreeable crude oil.

The people of the vicinity could not use the water and had to carry all they needed from the spring at the home of Mrs. Brown farm. This became burdensome in a short time and they protested the oil company to do some thing to relieve the burden.

Big chunks of the thick oil yet clog to the basin and the water is not yet by any means rid of the oily taste.

Representatives of the company visited the place and decided to run a pipe from a point above the broken pipe to a point a few rods to the east distant. This pipe will supply all the people along the route with water and will be used until all traces of oil have left the stream.

It is said springs in the Glen Furney region are known to be over 75 years and that some have gone dry which have always heretofore had some water.

SNYDER GOES TO PENITENTIARY

Convicted Chicken Thief is Given Indeterminate Sentence by Judge Swope. Makes no Effort to Secure a New Trial.

Unger J. Snyder, convicted this week of the larceny of chickens, on Saturday was taken to the County Court to undergo sentence. He was given nine months nor more than three years in the Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia.

William Herst, Esq., Mr. Snyder's counsel stated at the time he had retained the verdict that he would ask for a new trial, but has not as yet given his reasons why he should secure a new trial. It is thought that the case would not be contested further and the indeterminate sentence was pronounced.

Snyder is alleged to have been implicated with Shipping and Tom in the robbery of Lawyer Swope's chicken coop which was carried on in this county last spring. Coming from near Westminster the men are said to have resorted on quite a profitable vocation for buying and selling poultry, and it was by Constable Charles H. Wilson and Constable Bankard.

The men are alleged to have made a practice of visiting the farms where the chicken roosts were visited but stopping at some farm house, and were said to have believed that the chickens in a certain locality were safe from any of the horse and thet opportunities for the successful prosecution of their thefts were all the less.

The interest taken in the trial while it was in progress in the county seat of this county was very keen in Waynesboro and many persons from there were in attendance.

CROOKED FOOT BILL KILLED

Famous Old Dear finally Killed by J. Lewis Kane. Entrance into Camp Greeted with Numerous Salutes.

"Crooked Foot Bill," the big buck which has been eluding hunters on North Mountain for many years in the last fallen and to J. Lewis Kane, Esq., Democratic candidate for Congress from Kane, go the honors.

The hunters have dogged the big animal into camp the arrival of the old king of the mountain was heralded with numerous salutes and there was a general rejoicing. "Billy" had been wounded, limited number of times in season always to escape with his hide, and was known to all the hunters. The treaty rifle of Mr. Kane felled the big monarch of the mountain and colores the camp of the Kane Hunting Club. The big animal weighs about by two hundred pounds and has twelve points.

T. A. McKitterick, another member of the club, brought down the deer with a buck on Monday. This one weighed 190 pounds and had antlers with ten points.

The club is not yet through and other deer are reported in the hills which they hope to capture before the season closes on Dec. 15th. It is said the honors of "the kill" and are almost as great as other hunting deer, for the two weeks' hunt.

Mr. Kane is cordially and conveniently located on what was at one time the John McCreary farm, now owned by John Irwin, Sr.

Martin E. Bender and J. C. Norris, Chambersburg, while hunting, Satur day, captured a large wild turkey from Caledonia to White Pine mountain. The turkey was the largest which had been shot by some hunter. Wild cats and bears a part of the sport.

The Bendersville Hunting, Cl ub shot a bear and a fine buck.

NAME TO BE CHANGED

Springs Grove, says the "Hippie" has been changed to Hanoverdale and that within the next month or before January 1st, the name of the town will be changed from Spring Forge to Hanoverdale. Petitions have already been presented before Conemaugh township court and Judge Congressman Gretzel, of Lancaster County, who sold to A. B. Lawrence Grove, Lancaster County, will be discontinued, and that section supplied by the Hanover line.

After the postoffice at Spring Grove, has been changed to Hanoverdale, it will be an easy matter to substitute Hanoverdale for Spring Forge. The inconvenience has been occasioned to the postoffice department and to the mail matter intended for them going to Spring Forge instead of Spring Grove same cause.

The York County town being incorporated as Spring Grove, and the railroad company refusing to change from the same name has been the cause of much confusion in the handling of other business transactions with the outside world.

MR. BOMMER SETS THE OFFICE

The Post Office Department has appointed Mr. John A. Bomer, postmaster at Littlestown. The appointee was sought by a number of citizens.

What the Colors of Buoys Mean.

When you enter any harbor in the United States where the channel is marked by buoys you will find that those on your left hand as you enter will be painted red and have no point at the top. If you should see one painted black with a point on the top you would know the safe channel runs so close to it as possible, because that indicates the center of a narrow channel.

Buoys with red and black vertical stripes always mark the end of spits of land which run out into the sea or estuaries or the harbor of small islands in the middle of the channel. Anchorages are painted on a buoy in such a way that they can be seen at once as constructions in the harbor of small size, like the channel buoys.

If there are two such obstructions and a safe channel between them, as in the case of one you will have red and black horizontal stripes on the top and you will have black and white checkerboard.

When a wreck obstructs the channel you may know it by the fact that you see nine of the wrecks with the wood still showing. Sometimes the wreck has provided there is a clear channel. Then a black and white cross on one number will be painted in white above the buoy. When they cross on the left side of the channel and on the number when they cross on the right.

Usual Tenants.

LONG DISTANCE ROAD BUILDING

Highway 380 Miles Long Finished in One Year.

ALL THE WAY ACROSS IOWA.

Ten Thousand Workers Turned Out With Teams, Scrapers and Road Drags For Great Sixty Minute Ride. Governor Carroll Is Davenport.

The greatest piece of road building the world ever witnessed was pulled off in Iowa on October 15, when during the short space of one single hour, a line of road 380 miles in length was stretched entirely across the state of Iowa, from the Mississippi river on the extreme eastern portion of any road west of the Missouri river. Ten thousand workers were present in preparation for the work, but not a pick or shovel was used until the designated second was ticked off. Then, at 10 o'clock, 10,000 workmen swarmed out on to the roadway, and when their cheers died away the longest letter loam bed one of the finest highways ever made in the world.

And not the least interesting thing in connection with the construction piece of work is the fact that not only was the entire 380th segment of the work received one cent of wages, but the men who performed the task were responsible for the splendid showing.

Governor Carroll, of Iowa, was present at the opening of the road and delivered the principal address. Governor Carroll stated among other things that Iowa's Finally the matter became a political issue in the state and was taken up by the movement. Governor Carroll said that the movement was started by Mr. Holmes sevir ister Merch, and out of this movement developed the idea of the "river to river" road, stretching from the Missouri river to the Mississippi river in Davenport on the Mississippi, and the plan was to have it cross through the state from east to west.

"The idea that a river road is near perfect as is possible to make just because it runs by the side of water is a good roads convention.

Instead of constructing new communities to benefit the work the regular organizations of the state, the governor's committee decided to make use of the cities in each county through which the road was to pass. The committee appointed a chairman in each county and each party were asked to get in the best workers they could find. Each body was agreed to do so, and soon a force of 10,000 men, including Democrats and Democrats, each to see which party could turn out the best workmen "on the job" when the time should be called.

A Saturday was selected as the day and from 9 o'clock on that day the hour of work.

Every horse along the way was personally seen by the committees, and instructions were given that each be on the one hour that was asked for. Scrapers, plows, road drags, and everything necessary for the construction of professional retrieved building was provided.

In the weeks preceding the event the committees went along the road and made sure that the road was in such condition as to deter delight come to the day. Everything was ready when the time started working.

The success of the organization was shown on the Saturday the road was finished. Everything went like clock work, morning farmers began getting out in the fields with their teams, scrapers, plows, picks, shovels, scrapers, road drags, and everything else that the implements were brought along. Every farmer brought his own lunch and the Superintendents and overseers had their lunches provided. Promptly at 9 o'clock, the order was given to "fall in."

And 10,000 determined men "fell in" to the work and worked like beavers with might and main. At 10 o'clock the last load was dumped, the workers went back to their fields, leaving Iowa the possession of the longest piece of continuous roadway in the world.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Mud Roads Relic of Barbarism.

Mud roads are a relic of barbarism and always indicate a people of slow and unprogressive habits. In no state or county should ride over all the roads in the county. Every road that is considered as would be ready to bet on the superior intelligence and enterprise of the people, whether he met a single one or not. The value of a county can be greatly improved by the use of the split log drag on the dirt roads. Some farms have already been established and are proving to be a fine stimple process of keeping the roads in fine condition during the dry season of the drag.

Keep Good Roads Good.

It requires little labor to keep an excellently practical people, but a little neglect for a few days in the form of broken and ruts and a few hundred dollars require or occasional costs of labor to preserve the thickness. It does not pay his carriage or his snow to neglect his work or his duties in repairing also on such a fool theory. The principle of the economy of the "means of prevention" and the "method of time" is his personal and business affairs, but such maxims seem to have no application to road maintenance.

THE HIRED MAN PROBLEM.

Another year from which the writer visited the other day the proprietor employed a pile of a couple of hundred feet of excellent wood about ready to burn by saying that it was simply impossible to get a hired man enough to do the work connected with his large farm and do it well. Some of the other work, including the spreading of the manure as it accumulated. He had offered fellows from town $1.50 a day and board, but they had "dropped the pen" after a day or two, notwithstanding the fact that they were riding the manure spreader on good snow and ice. The predicament in which this man found himself is typical of that in the locality in which he lives. This locality is a region of large farms, the tracts varying every mile who has from one to two miles in length, owned by the members of his own family. It is a region in which the people have not only enjoyed the big grain farms of the west, but have also made money by them. The trouble is that it is going to improve. In order of the fact that the tide of foreign immigration is sweeping into the country as it never has before, and as it is going to there is still the greatest dearth of help on the farms that has ever existed. The tasks at a pace for contriving the labor problem are almost numberless. The time would seem to be near at hand when it will mean first of all a division of labor. The farmers will be the ones where they can be handled by the largest units, and the owners of the machine, substitutes of machinery in the place of human hands will be employed at all feasible; a definite arrangement will be made for the hiring of help for the victim of "odor" circumstances in the way of farm labor. The farmer who cannot hobble out hops from a transfer of responsibility to the state employment city directors to rural communities. Intelligence offices will be established in every county seat, and practically and monthly move of agricultural help will be made from foreigners used to agricultural labor to the farms, instead of to the cities and factory. These are some of the general movements which are inevitable. Whether it is one that is minimized or aggravated by the present writer is not the kind of treatment which an aggressive farmer will be compelled to accept in the end fault finding or liberal, genial and sympathetic treatment of the problem of participating phases of the problem depends largely on the individual farmer. Everything considered, this help problem is one of the most serious that has to do for settlement, and it is clear that it will be necessary for it to be treated to be even a partial solution.

ANOTHER RANK FRAUD.

The Government has at least eight bored a warning to prospective home seekers against a fraud which is the well laid scheme of an organized band of swindlers who are now operating and trying to many trading papers the operations of which have been exposed by the government and the Yakima Indian Commission. Under the guise of the Yakima Irrigation Project the reclamation service has surveyed practically all of the land under the project and ready to placing the land under ditch at the rate of $40 per acre. Water rights cost only $30 an acre and that the Government has given the Yakima water to an area sufficient for 7,000 homes. Immediately following the opening of land in the vicinity of the famous Pole hill project the land sharks have come out with the announcements to buy relinquishments. The Government authorities state that there is no promise of water for irrigation purposes. The land settlement is the only thing that is offered. The land sharks claim that Uncle Sam has spent so much money that it is likely to be irrigated or is entire for the land and that water rights are sure to be probably not a quarter section contained in the tracts included in the land. Settlements on which a family could make a living are few and far between, the only desirable feature connected with the land is the fine irrigation system which is offered to excess soldiers' claims for 320 acres.

DUAL PURPOSE COWS.

There are mighty few men who possess the ambition to own a herd of 100 or two things just as well as they can do one or two. Included in the list of the breed makes an extra good showing for the dual purpose cow. Many of the men who are breeding for profit have a considerable portion of the feed it now raised on the farm and the cow is the purpose of this is equally true; hence it is the breed of the "many" farmers. The world better milk be bred type—the Holstein, Guernsey and Jersey breeds—hence will if dairying is his forte he will breed for quality and not for quantity breed—the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire or Holstein.

DIAZ FORCES HOLD REBELS IN CHECK

Madero Officials Say Order Has Been Restored.

BUSINESS AT A STANDSTILL

Precious Madero, the Revolutionary Leader, is Said to Be Surrounded. Only One Train Leaves Puebla.

Mexico City, Nov. 25.—Advices received from all parts of the country this date that quiet is prevailing and that the government is rapidly getting control of the situation in Mexico City, Guadalajara, Monterey, Torreon and all other large cities.

The agents of the government are buying all the arms and ammunition in sight. In one store in Guadalajara 1,000 rifles were bought by government officials. The agents, dressed as civilians, went to buy up all the available arms in the country.

Arrests of the revolutionists continue, many of them being made in Mexico City from outside places. The list of the names of Federal Prisoners' rumors are current of outbreaks of various places, which cannot be confirmed. Little credence is placed in them. The government believes that Madero is in Mexico and is meeting every effort to apprehend him. Troops are daily leaving Mexico City for the north, and all is quiet in the capital.

Business in Mexico City and in all parts of the country is greatly depressed and the political unrest is still keenly felt. The well informed always say the only trouble at present comes from a few bands of rebels in the northern parts of the republic, which will be soon dispersed by the troops.

The newspapers of Mexico City, which have received the detailed reports of the trouble, are now being censored.

Changes in the governorships of several states are to be made, as per of President Diaz as a result of the revolutionary movement. It is believed Diaz holds the governors of some states responsible for the recent deplorable demonstrations.

Confession Madero's Property.

Fresh from the battle fields of the Mexican government has issued a proclamation declaring the confiscation of property of Francisco I. Madero, the revolutionary leader, whose death has been received here. Madero owned a large number of cotton farms in the state of Coahuila, and much valuable property in Mexico City.

Corrales, a prominent revolutionist in the possession of the insurrectos, and Madero, the revolutionary leader and Durango are under federal control, the rebellion is practically ended. The Mexican government claims that peace reigns in the republic and that Guerrero is in peace and quiet.

Madero, leader of the rebellion of the states of Chihuahua in place of Governor Abraham Gonzalez assassinated, who were repulsed in the towns in the state of Durango, and that the rebellion in that state is ended and is being pursued by troops as killed. This summarizes the Maderan situation.

Peace Still in Parts.

Paris, Nov. 25.—Ambassador Bernardo Reyes, the Mexican soldier, who came to Europe on a mission of peace and mission, is still in this city, and is said to be in communication with Madero, who is at this time. Reports that Reyes has been killed and that the revolution had been crushed.

SELECT CULLINGS

Creating a Prince of Wales.

Among the sort of stories in which so many Welsh towns recently ungaged to devise ways the coming investiture of the Prince of Wales should be held the natives were of Carnarvon has secured notoriety, because by advertising and picturesque in the old crossway observed at the creation of a Prince of Wales. The ritual is as follows:

"He is presented before this king in his service, clad in armor of purple velvet and gilt with a belt of the same, when the king patteth a cap of crimson velvet, indented and turned up with ermine, and a coronet on his head as a token of principality.

"And the king also putteth in his hand a verge of gold, the emblem of government, and a ring on his left middle finger to intimate that he must be husband to his country and a father to his children.

"Then the Prince of Wales is set in a chair of state, and with crowns in each one.—London "Tit-Bits."

The "Yellow Man" Ghost in Paris.

In Paris, the ghost of the "Yellow Man" is firmly believed by many, that the "ghost of the chamber of torture" has again been seen. This ghost is known as the "Yellow Man," and is not a ghastly apparition, for it is soft, cuddlesome, fluffy, harmless, and its face is dark yellow, while its body is white. It is not a ghost, as of blood, says the tradition, according to which it is the ghost of a maid-in-waiting to Marie Antoinette, made its first appearance in the chamber of torture in 1811, just before the coup d'etat of Napoleon III. The "Yellow Man" is said to appear in the room opposite the torture chamber, every year, and was seen thereafter on the eve of the Franco-Prussian war, and of the assassination of Carnot. Of course it would be quite impossible for professors the gallery that leads to the torture chamber and the president of the chamber. Superstitious Parisians are much afraid of the nature of the new misfortune which this ghost generally presages.

The Age of Wonders.

In commenting on the Engineering Congress, held in Paris, M. Bleriot, the Seven Wonders of the World" a writer in the Journalist says that the people of the world will probably not accept the fact that the Seventh Wonder is the Panama canal. Nevertheless, it is the fact that the Eiffel tower, the Eiffel bridge and the Forth bridge and the Forth bridge and the fastest ocean liner, the Lusitania, are all wonders of their time. But a triumphal arch will some day be built to the Panama canal and the Panama canal will be a competitor for a few years with the Lusitania and will have skyscrapers, if they do not always stand, for a time. The Eiffel tower and the great steamers mentioned may be the wonders of their time and place. The underground and underwater railways of the world are also wonderful, and the work of the Panama canal will be one of the wonders of the world. Who is the age of wonders.

Vienna Opera Stars.

The Daily Mail says: Among the figures or reports from Vienna singers, he loves Americans. Everything about the pay of great artists is known. Mme. Gerhardt-Hauptmann, "Rosa Kaus," says the Gazette, "the great prima donna of the Vienna Court Opera, heads the list with an annual salary of 60,000 kronen (£2,400) every song, with a commission added which brings her income to 80,000 kronen sold. On an average Frenchmen and Americans are the highest paid singers. Caruso, at the Metropolitan House, who is performed $1,000 per night, Mme. Gerhardt, Mme. Kurz, the opera, Ivor Schmedes receive $800 per night, and Mme. Jeritza a commission on the records sold."

The New Rabbis Treasure.

Rabbi Hirsch has a new treasure and most radical novelty in nun's wear. The new garment is composed of the attitude of the nun of today who is left to attend to the housekeeping duties of his daily life while his wife attends to the duties of the religious observer of the family. Hebbin trousers are in reality two hobble skirts sewed at the top and cut with straight fronts and backs. The garment is worn by tying down the entire back opening of the skirt.

The new garment is made of tweed, ranging from the rough Scotch plaids, and other rough effects similar to the pais velour and plain broad cloths for evening wear.—Judge.

Feeding the Public.

"Why did you have your book advertised as the smorgasbord edition?" "Because I thought it a title that might not read."

"Well, I had to do considerable hard work on the title."—Boston Post.

BURGLARS KILL PASTOR AND WIFE

Aged Couple in Detroit Bank, N. J., Shot Down at Home.

HOUSEKEEPER WAS UNDER BED

Night Prowlers Find Minister and Wife Awake and Murder Them and Rob the House.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 12.—Rev. Andrew L. Armstrong, the eighty-year-old pastor of the Presbyterian church at Dutch Neck, ten miles east of the city of Trenton, and his wife were murdered at their home by burglars. That the house was ransacked, but nothing but money and the handsome gold watch of the aged preacher appparently was taken.

At first it was believed that burglars committed the crime, but the circumstances surrounding the case tend to the conclusion by the police of authorities that the murderer or murderers were no ordinary thieves, but persons familiar with the premises and the habits of the inmates of the house.

The authorities questioned Joseph Sears, son of Mrs. John Sears, the aged housekeeper of the Armstrongs. Sears was put through a rigid examination by Prosecutor William J. Crowley.

Sears had left the house on a hunting expedition and returned soon after the murder was committed. His story was that he was on the second floor of the house, heard screams and the shots and hid in terror under the bed. He was not turned.

Sears was brought to Trenton by Kirkham, the county detective. Kirkham said that Sears confessed to the murder to him.

Mrs. Sears was supposed to have been cured by the shooting of the two stranger was found, but it vanished any one empty shell, and the murderers are at a loss to understand how the other shot was fired. Sears, it is understood, says he can prove an alibi, and insists that he is not guilty.

Mr. Armstrong and his wife were both shot in the breast, and both it was seemed certain, died instantly. Their bodies were found in pools of blood on the first floor of the house.

The aged pastor's body was lying in his study, while that of his wife was lying in a doorway leading from the kitchen to the dining-room.

From the condition of the lower floor of the house it appears that the aged pastor and his wife were awakened by the eighty-year-old clergyman and his wife to escape the assailants. It is believed that the murderers were recognized by the Armstrongs and that they threatened the house and that the aged couple were killed because of their identities.

Cash apparently is what was wanted, and with the exception of money, they apparently took nothing save that the handsome gold watch of the aged pastor. This was roughly torn from the chain worn around his neck, and his pockets were turned inside out.

Mrs. John Sears, an aged woman, has been housekeeper for the Armstrongs for many years. Her son, Joseph Sears, a young man, has lived with them for years.

Early in the morning Joseph Sears arose to go hunting in the neighborhood of New Brunswick. He left his mother and the pastor and his wife in the house.

Mr. Armstrong and his wife seldom retired early, as most people in the rural districts do. Mrs. Armstrong had founded reading and would sit in the dining-room and read until late. Mr. Armstrong would spend the evening in his study on the same floor.

Mrs. Sears heard the screams and shots, and fearing for her own life, fled. Thus the time and circumstances of the double murder are pretty well established.

It is believed that the burglars entered the house between 1 and 2 o'clock. They forced their way in and surprised Mr. Armstrong and his wife.

Mrs. Armstrong, apparently, arose to see what was going on, and was shot first, a bullet entering her breast. Then the aged pastor rushed into the room and he also was made the victim of shots. The women rolled over on her side, with her arms over her face, and almost immediately after the pastor had dropped over dead on the study floor.

Mrs. Sears was in her room and was preparing to retire for the night when the first shot was fired. She realized that something terrible was happening, but she was powerless to give assistance.

The aged women closed her door and, frightened almost to death, she crawled under the bed. She remained for fate was to be the same as the Armstrongs.

After the burglars had slain the old people, Mrs. Sears heard them ransacking the house.

Mrs. Sears expected her son at any minute, as she lay under the bed almost in a state of collapse. About 11 o'clock Sears returned. As he walked into the house he met his mother running down the stairs. The frightened old woman told him in the dark and told him of what had happened.

Sears and his mother went to the home of Hiram Coleman and George Coleman, who called on help their fellow neighbors were aroused and a posse organized in the village.

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Gives Pittsburg Technical School $2,500,000.

CARNEGIE ADDS TWO MILLIONS TO GIFT

Presents Bonds to Maintain Pittsburg Technical Schools.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 22.—Trustees of the Carnegie Technical schools announced following Andrew Carnegie's gift of $1,000,000 for immediate use in building extensions and equipment of the technical schools, that the school system has also given an additional sum of $2,000,000 in bonds and three dwelling houses of the United States Steel corporation, the income from which is now a yearly value of $1,200,000.

The earnings of these bonds is to be for the maintenance of the evening schools that will increase the student body to 5,000. This makes a total donation at this time of $3,000,000.

BRAZIL'S NAVY IS IN REVOLT

Mutiny Spreads to Four Vessels at Rio Janeiro.

SEVERAL OFFICERS KILLED

Congress Meets to Consider the Demands of the Sailmen—Want More Pay and Abolishment of Corporal Punishment.

Washington, Nov. 23.—A mutiny has occurred on board four vessels of the Brazilian navy, now in Rio de Janeiro, according to advices received at the Brazilian embassy in this city.

The crews of the battleships Sao Paulo, Minas Geraes and the cruisers Barbaro and Bahia revolted and after killing all the officers took possession of the vessels. The commander then barded the town, causing considerable damage.

The revolt was due to dissatisfaction with conditions of service and to political significance whatever, Mr. Bruno Brizzolara, the charge d'affaires of the Brazilian embassy, received several dispatches from Senor Lauro Muller, minister of foreign affairs of Brazil, explaining the matter. The more ment, the dispatches said, was organized by sailors who had been in the navy a short time and who objected to the severe punishments they received. They declined to join the mutineers, and remained loyal to the government.

Among the victims was Captain Batista Dal Noyes, of the battleship Minas Geraes.

This battleship visited Hampton Roads last October and participated in the armored cruiser North Carolina, which carried the body of the late Admiral Nabuco, former Brazilian ambassador here, from this country to Rio.

While his vessel was in Hampton Roads Commander Batista Dal Noyes had Washington and was introduced to Secretary Knox.

OFFER TO SURRENDER

Senate Approves of Amnesty For Brazilian Mutineers.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 26. — After killing several officers, shelling the arsenal and bombarding the city, the seats in the harbor, the mutineers in the navy have offered to lay down their armament offering to surrender.

The senate has unanimously approved a proposition for amnesty to the mutineers, which will be signed by the president.

The crews remained on board the battleships Minas Geraes and Sao Paulo, the cruisers Bahia and Barbaro and the torpedo boat destroyer Deodoro two warships retained and an engagement is expected.

It is officially stated that the revolt is not a political movement and should be described as a mutiny against the severe punishments and concessions from their officers, relative to the abolition of corporal punishment in the navy of inferiority compared with the conditions of service of the officers attending sailors.

The revolt began on board when the crews of two of the bigger warships refused to obey their officers.

The mutineers on the Minas Geraes made a formal demand for increased pay and the abolition of corporal punishment and then withdrew to the outer harbor.

TWO WOMEN LEAD POSSE

Saloonkeeper Found Dead After Killing Man Who Attacked Him.

New Castle, Ind., Nov. 25.—Two women led a posse which found Charles Wilham Griffin, a desperate saloonkeeper, dead in his saloon after he had captured two crooks and then barricaded himself in his place.

Griffin, it is believed, had just returned from a visit to his son, whom he had not seen for many years, at Omaha, Neb., when he was murdered.

The two women were acquaintances of Griffin, who had visited him on his way, and when they reached the room found the saloonkeeper with a bullet in the head.

Griffin was angered over a court decision charging him with assault and battery, and left his place on the streets, firing at every one who attempted to halt him. Special Officer Lee Spencer, who shot through the head and killed, attempted to arrest Griffin. Carpenter, who shot in the neck, and Lee Spencer, who shot through the leg, surrendered. Both it is said will die.

MRS. PANKHURST.

Suffragettes Mail Asquith.

Premier Asquith, of England, while on his way from his official residence in Downing street, London, to parliament was attacked by a crowd of suffragettes.

The premier received a blow from one of them and escaped rougher treatment only through the intervention of the police.

Mr. Asquith, earlier in the day, yielded to the importunities of the suffragettes and received a delegation of them consisting of the women still in power and the last session of parliament. The premier would give no definite promise for the consideration of a woman suffrage bill on account of an admit of free amendment.

When the premier's promise, balanced of pleasing, only inflamed the militants, who declared that Mr. Asquith was playing with them.

Yesterday at Canton hall Miss Christabel Pankhurst characterized the ministerial statement as wholly unsatisfactory and "nothing more nor less than a bandit to the cause of women, she shouted, considered the premier's policy a challenge and they would answer the challenge accordingly.

No sooner said than done. The militants emptied the hall and proceeded to the house of parliament, throwing stones. With unexpected good fortune the premier was in the carriage on route, and before the premier realized what was happening he was assailed by irate suffragettes. It was not long before the premier reached the Downing street, and without any parley, he was safe behind the doors of the home of the government leader, at the same time suffragette.

"You tax women as heartily as men, but you refuse them representation in parliament."

Such police whistles brought officers from all nearby quarters, and as the suffragettes had declared their intention for the privilege of getting at him, the police were forced to form a cordon around the premier to keep him safe.

Miss Williams made another attempt to get at the premier and succeeded in put her fist through the glass of the carriage window, but was soon taken into custody.

Among the women who were arrested was Mrs. Pankhurst, wife of the late plumber, of Washington, fined a dis- Stirling magistrate, fined a disorderly conduct.

Miss Kerr-Watters, who had just been released from prison, where she was serving a month's sentence for breaking windows, was also arrested.

300 Feet Through Sewer.

Wriggling through an eighteen-inch sewer 300 feet long, Frank Wilson, a plumber, of Washington, found a dozen starving rats in his face.

Wilson had gone to let in Miss Helen Gould. The loss had worried her greatly, and when the plumber had not appeared on her for apprehension set in. Her fears were groundless, however, and she recovered.

The dowager now thinks the news of the recovery of the ring will add greatly to restoring its owner her health.

Big Fire at Harrisburg.

Fire in the Bell Telephone company's exchange in Harrisburg, Pa., caused damage estimated at $100,000 before it was gotten under control.

The building, a handsome structure, is owned by the David W. Cotterell Stationery company, the Bell Telephone company and the Holmes Seed company.

The three structures were completely gutted and the loss on the buildings and contents will exceed $100,000.

Quarter Meter Kills Girl.

Miss Ethel Hall, aged 17 years, was killed by a car on the Pennsylvania railroad at the street crossing of Scranton. Pa. Miss Hall was struck by the car and Carmine Rome failed because school. Miss Hall was on her way to school, and the jet in the young woman's room overlooking the car line. Rome later his brother returned home and found the girl lying on the floor unconscious with the gas. The room occupied by the girl was filled with gas.

Democratic Majority 65.

The democratic majority in the organization the next house of representatives at Washington will be 65 as between the Republicans and 1 Socialist, according to the power of the house. These figures give the Democrats a majority of 65 and a plurality of 61.

Five Children Die at Sea.

Five children died on the steamer Ontario on the voyage from Trieste to Naples.

The vessel had to get into port also had at quarantine for the trouble. The steamer had left Trieste for Naples with a cargo of fifty-three children, all of which were consigned to the care of the captain.

STOCK SWINDLE OF $50,000,000

Federal Authorities Raid Offices and Arrest Firm.

HUGE FRAUDS ALLEGED

Wholesale Swindle in Shares of Companies That Have Paine-dig Gushers Were Promised, But None Paid.

Federal officials raided the offices occupied by Burr Brothers, in New York, a corporation dealing in stocks and other securities.

The raids were made on warrants charging the use of the mails to defraud investors.

Postoffice officials say that the firm has sold stock valued at par value between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 in stock in various companies most of which, they say, have been organized to become bankrupt, and some in a single instance paying the dividends held out in the promises of the concern.

The raids were made by Postoffice Inspector Dickson, postoffice inspector, in charge of the New York district, and Postoffice Inspector Frank Hitchcock and Postoffice Inspector Stevens Hall, inspector.

The officers arrested were: Sheldon G. Burr, president; F. Harry Tobey, vice president, and Edward M. Bell, secretary and treasurer.

The capital stock of the company is $10,000,000, divided into 100,000 common shares and held in $25,000 blocks, pending the furnishing of the bail they were sent to jail.

Numerous companies have been made against the corporation by investors, who charge that they have been swindled through false representations made by the officers of the company. The profits that were being realized by the company, it is charged, were from various oil, lumber, copper, lead, and other companies.

After the raid Postmaster General Hitchcock issued a fraud order forbidding concerning Burr Brothers. The order was issued on evidence that the firm had been using the mails to defraud investors in various companies.

The Burr Brothers have also organized, promoted and sold the stock in the following companies: Burr Consolidate Tarentum, with a capital of $1,000,000; Burr Consolidated Land and Investing, with a capital of $1,000,000; Burr Consolidated Oil and Gas, with a fixing company, with a capital of $500,000; Burr Consolidated Mining and Leasing company, capitalized at $1,000,000; Burr Consolidated Mining and Leasing company, capitalized at $1,000,000; Burr Consolidated Land and Investment company, capitalized at $1,000,000; Burr Consolidated Mining and Leasing

"BACK TO THE FARM"

XV.—The Mission of the Country Church.

By C. V. GREGORY.

[Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association.]

THE country church has a place to fill in the rural community that can be filled by nothing else. In too many cases the church has failed to take the most of its opportunities. Its growth has not kept pace with the growth of other rural institutions.

The country church is too often a mere imitation of the city church. The church often—and rightly—does not recognize that rural needs in religion are no distinctive as rural needs in education. In the city there is room for many churches and many denominations. In the country this is not the case. One church is enough for any country community, and it is large enough to be a community institution. The cross of denominationalism has been the ruin of religious life in many a rural community. From being an occasion of cross the church too often has become a promoter of strife. A spirit of friendly rivalry has developed where there ought to be love between denominations. When churches fight the devil gets his due, and too often he has added opportunity to capture the white community, bag and baggage.

The cause where church differences are carried to extremes is circumscribed comparatively rare. The worst part of the division into denominations is found usually in the division of church support. A community would easily support one thriving church divides its religious energy and money so that the same money is inadequately portioned out to two churches. The result is that most of the time and energy of the pastor is dissipated in the effort to keep the struggling in all the churches in a vicious quarrel as to which society controls which the divided churches can afford to run without paying the poorer ones of preachers. Often two or three towns or parts of towns in one prosperous community are provided for all. Its most spend a large part of their time traveling, and his only influence in the community is that which he secures from the pulpit on Sunday. If instead of giving one poor preacher churches in different towns he were given the time he is now wasting he would have more time to give to his people.

In associate the different churches here the same denominations they want the plain, simple religion of Jesus Christ. They do not want an uplift below over fanciful differences of creed. They want the gospel of the church to be preached in such a way that churches are not difficult to secure. The church does not recognize the country church as having the right to exist any other than those of the city church. The pastor who is not willing to make church in usually a city born and city trained man with city ideals. He has no understanding of rural life or rural conditions and he often he has no desire to learn. He looks upon the country church as a stepping stone to a pulpit in the city.

It is little wonder that a preacher with no sympathy with the conditions or lives of his people cannot achieve the highest success. He does not preach the theology when they want the simple truth. He talks them how to do when they are trying to learn how to live.

Modern agriculture has awakened the rural consciousness. It has awakened the rural schools, and where given a chance it is beginning to fill the life into the country churches. The idea is aeroplane only to those who regard agriculture as an occupation only, like hoeing or law. Agriculture is much more than this. It is a life and by means of the agricultural press the church that does not recognize this life and help people who are living it is more their pastimes can not long exist.

The fundamental changes must come with the ministers of the country. He he is the active force in the church and the success of the church in its circuitous replaces some of the theological with the agricultural science or whether practical religion is given a place in the sermons depends on the bases. The successful country pastor is the man who has a knowledge of the matters of religion and agriculture. He is the man who is in sympathy with country life and an appreciation of its needs. He is the man who uses the church to its proper place in the community. He is the man who makes the country church the social center of the community. He is the man who is a leader in all things that are for the betterment of the community. He is the man who is a leader in all things that are for the betterment of the community. He is the man who is a leader in all things that are for the betterment

AN INNOVATION AT INSTITUTE

Admittance Hours Established and Entrance Hours will be Strictly Observed. Instructors not to be Interrupted.

That teachers and instructors together with all others in attendance at the sessions of the Adams County Institute to be held in Penn Hall next week may not be annoyed by people entering and leaving the building during lectures, County Superintendent H. Milton Roth has decided to put into an innovation in the shape of special hours for admittance. The doors will be closed at all other times and no one will be admitted to enter the building. Those who are in will be requested to remain until the next period is over and the doors are opened for a few minutes.

In other words a great deal of annoyance has been caused by people coming into the sessions in the middle of a address, causing noise and confusion. The new plan will do away with this and will guard against all interruptions of the sort.

The morning and afternoon sessions will begin at eight o'clock and will last past one and the teachers will be supposed to be in their seats at those hours. For the general public the hours of admission will be in the morning from 9.00 to 9.30; 10.15 and 11.00. The afternoon hours will be from 1.30 to 2.00 and 2.45.

The first session will be held Monday afternoon, the Institute to be opened with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Paul E. Apple.

The music will be in charge of Prof. Thomas L. Gilbert. Musical numbers welcome will be made by President Granville and a solo by Prof. J. Ed. Willard Becker, of East Berlin. Dr. Granville will also have an address, "Relative Number Systems;" Dr. Charles H. Gordinier on "Text Books;" and Dr. Frank B. Wills on the Study of History." The evening entertainment will consist of stereopticon views with the subject, "Two Old Confederates."

Tuesday morning the devotional exercises will be conducted by Rev. Dr. D. W. Woods. The addresses of the morning will be: "Commercial Geography," Dr. Willis; "The Art of Questioning," Dr. Gordinier; "The Business of the Public Schools," Dr. Charles H. Ellis. The afternoon addresses will be "The School and the Home," Dr. Ellis; "Arithmetic as a Library Man," Dr. Willis; "The Teacher's Creed," Dr. Granville. The evening Dr. Byron C. Platt will lecture on "American Ideals."

Rev. J. H. Baker will conduct the devotional exercises Wednesday morning. Dr. Willis will lecture on "Money;" Dr. Ellis on "Education and the State;" Dr. Gordinier on "The School as a Social Center." In the afternoon the subject will be "Physiology," Dr. Gordinier; "The School and Society," Dr. Willis; "Great American Debates," Dr. Willis. The evening entertainment will be by the Rowsie, Nuttre New Zealanders."

Rev. H. A. Hauch will conduct the devotional services on Thursday morning. Dr. Ellis will lecture on "Lewis Agassiz." Dr. Gordinier on "The Mother Tongue" and Dr. Willis on "Alexander Hamilton." In the afternoon Dr. Gordinier's subject will be "I Serve," Dr. Ellis, "Our Attitude;" Dr. Willis, "Jesus Christ." The International Bazaitz will give the evening entertainment.

Friday morning Rev. C. F. Sanders will conduct the devotional exercises. Dr. Willis will talk on the "Good Looking Teachers" and Dr. Gordinier on "The Man in the Street."

The hours for the morning lectures will be 10; 10.45 and 11.30 and for the afternoon 2.00; 2.45 and 3.45 so that any wishing to hear any special lectures can tell at what time they will take place.

There will be special department instruction. On Tuesday morning at 8.15 Dr. Gordinier will talk to the primary teachers on "Primary Children" on "Wednesday at the same time Dr. Ellis is to principals on "Discipline;" and on Thursday Dr. Willis to the rural teachers on "Rural Country Schools and Country Life."

BETTER MARKET

There were more wagons at Saturday's curb market than for a number were scarce. Apples and potatoes were the principal things offered for sale though some nice turkeys, chickens and ducks were also offered for sale, dandelion wine and other things were also noted.

TWO MARRIED TEACHERS

Next week Gettysburg will have as its guest more than two hundred Adams County teachers. There are 210 in the county and very few of them will be left at home to attend the session. The instructors secured are all well known and the entertaining evening entertainments promise to be well.

"The last year or two some absurd stories about the effects of vaccination in parasite have been spread and in some parts of the country there is a superstition that it is poisonous and that fleas have almost caused the ruin of many cattle owners. It is a fact that snake which is a white hair worm, which is found in the intestines of a piece of corn silk, is declared by some veterinary surgeons to be a parasite. It is nothing of the kind, being, in fact, absolutely harmless."

JOHN UBER

John Uber, a resident of Littlestown, for the past thirty years, died at his home in Littlestown, on Friday last.

He had been in ill health for the past year and a half, but had been confined to his bed only two weeks.

He was born in this county, his maiden name was Miss Anna Green, to two sons and two daughters, Charles, N. Y., and Mr. Edw. Unger, Littlestown, Pa.

Funeral this morning at Littlestown.

SCHOOL RIVALS

Hickory Hill Academy, commonly known as "Hoover's School" defeated the Two Taverns on Tuesday to play a game of basketball, the contest coming off on account of the newly formed team having to disband on account of the weather. The game was called off by Edward L. Wilbert, referee of the game, who is teacher at Hickory Hill Academy.

DEATH OF INFANT

Catharine L. Rosters, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rosters, of Edgegrove, died Tuesday from a complication of diseases. Interment was made Thursday afternoon in the cemetery at Conewago Chapel.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

Twenty Second Anniversary of Founding of St. James Christian Endeavor Society Celebrated Sunday Evening.

St. James church was filled almost to capacity on Sunday evening when the twenty second anniversary of the founding of the Christian Endeavor Society in that church was celebrated.

A sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Logan, preceded the anniversary services by a solo by Miss Ruth Bream and the Scripture lesson, Rev. J. B. Baker offered prayer and Miss Bream sang a solo.

George Hartman, president of the Senior Society made the report of the work done by that branch of the organization during the past year. The society now has its active membership of 175, an honorary membership of 40 and an associate membership of 10. During the past year it has contributed $85 to the cause of missions. Mr. Hartman's report was full of cheer by the various committees.

Miss Ruth Bream, superintendent of the Junior Society reported 101 active members in that branch of the work. She exhibited annually to the support of an African boy. Short illustrated lectures on the work of the various branches of society and a great deal of interest is shown by the juniors. Many of the members followed Miss Miller's report.

The address of the evening was made by Rev. Dr. Logan, of New York, a former pastor of St. James. Rev. Dr. Logan stated that he has not been so elated since 17 years ago when he was pastor of this church. He knew some people present who had been members of the church before being baptized at that time and who had been converted. He thanked the Endeavorers for the work they had done and gave them encouragement. He thanked the Endeavorers for the work they had done and gave them encouragement. He kindled his address with many interesting incidents in connection with the work of the church during the past seasons. As far as can be learned through conversation with farmers and from reports in the papers, the yield during the past season have been beneficial to the farmers, the yield being a little better part of the summer.

The evening service was a success and in wheat, oats, rye, hay and potatoes the crops were above the average in both quantity and quality.

There is a scarcity of fruit this the yield of corn, which some persons predicted would be a failure, is very good, that above the average. Not all of it has been husked but many farmers report that they will have a good crop.

Stock and poultry also, are giving raisers a good rate on their investments. Chickens, ducks, turkeys are found to be quite plentiful.

VERDICT OF $13,500

Frank L. Benning, one of the men injured in the wreck on the Western Maryland over the Potomac at Williamsport was on Wednesday awarded $13,500 by a jury for the injuries he sustained at that time.

He sued the Pennsylvania Steel company for $50,000 for injuries received on the bridge. The testimony showed that Benning was thrown from the bridge by the accident and aside from the injuries suffered he received for months, he is permanently injured.

Bids of his face and jaw were crushed and his eye was knocked out. Both ears were broken and crushed.

The sight of his left eye is failing and he has no sense of smell on one side. He was also nailed and otherwise injured about the shoulder and leg.

CIVILIZATION IN MANCHUR

Raymond, the 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Myers, of Hanover, had his left collar bone broken in two places on the grounds of the Wainut street school building. While playing with other boys, Raymond fell on the ball, who had been transferred from the U. B. playground. He attempted to fall, he was thrown down by a large boy, who fell on him, breaking the bone, with the above result. Dr. H. M. Bowman reduced the fracture.

PULLMAN TAKES OFF

The Philadelphia and Reading has taken off the Pullman which has been attached to the 5.55 and 6.05 trains. This will be for the winter months only, the patronage not justifying the service.

GOOD CORN HUSKER

Hiram Showers, aged 56 years, of Littlestown, died at his home Saturday morning. Funeral services will be held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, interment in the Littlestown cemetery.

Hiram's Butterfly

A Story of an Acrophone

By CLARISSA MACKIE

It was poised on the rolling green of the west meadow and with its outspread wings looked very much like a great white butterfly.

"I call it an 'air flier,'" explained Hiram Bliss to the group of men who met women who had gathered about the machine. They pretty proved to be the case.

GOOD CORN HUSKER

Hiram Showers, aged 56 years, of Littlestown, died at his home Saturday morning. Funeral services will be held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, interment in the Littlestown cemetery.

Fifteen minutes later she was returned. She had been afraid to try the scope at the end of which a small mirror reflected the scene at her ground with annoying frequency, in the mirror she saw the face of the man at the controlling wheel. Her self-control was not shaken when he had gathered about her. Her pretty proof of her self-possession was the conviction that her intolerance more than her fear had been responsible above the ground. Suppose some part of the machine broke!

She had determined upon what expedient she would adopt to escape when this aerial Hiram to the ground until the machine had time to descend and then to give up the risky adventure, but she heard his approaching step.

She whirled away in the shadow of the machine and, with the sound of the snuffling feels of cravens in a panic, she fled across the field. Her head and shoulders and crouched under the machine. Instead, however, it resumed the air flier, trying each part of the machinery in turn. At the moment here and there, his face stern with concentration, he was at the lever last tested in the tent.

Then, with a whirring roar, the machine started down the slope, the wheels revolving with the speed of a motor car. After, and somehow Ellen's hands were clasped around the upright of the seat and then she felt herself rising upward with terrifying rapidity.

Clutching the anchor, Ellen swept the earth with a terrified glance, but she felt in a gigantic vise. She heard the whirring of the machinery behind and she felt no horror. She closed her eyes and opened them to see the earth spread out in a vast panorama. Then, with a sudden sickening sensation, she realized that the machine was descending. Crooked trench, and she lost her hold on the anchor. With a sensation that she felt into the embracing arms of Hiram Bliss, who, standing with his aeronaut in the branches she saw in the air. The machine shot upward through the moonlight, the anchor rope dangling from the car and with the noise of the engine died away and was lost.

Cradled in the trapeze, Hiram dared not look downward. Ellen's face, in the slight wounds, and she had fallen asleep. Her head rested against his shoulder upward like the rise of a ship. Hiram looked down. Ellen's beautiful face was screened, and her tresses, escaping from the confining net, caressed his cheek. He was conscious of the agony of notion that her head rested against his shoulder upward like the rise of a ship.

Too wretched to cry aloud more than a whisper, he looked down and through the long hours of the night. Hiram looked down upon cities and villages, the moonlight revealing the roofs of the houses and the spires of the churches. Once he looked down upon a ship and the soft track of wind to the sea.

She must have fallen asleep, for the first thing she knew was that a delicious sensation came awakened her to pale consciousness. Hiram was kissing her on his voice.

"Ellen! I am," she called faintly, and then louder, until at last he came nearer to her. "Ellen, I am sorry, but until they were within the knees and the machine descended upon the broad that Hiram spoke sooth ingly.

"Do you know what you did, Ellen Hiram?" he said. "You were talking about making a successful flight, but you didn't know that you were flying with the machine. That there anchor rope that you grasped was the key to the whole perfectly. Whatever you did with it the machine did. I could do nothing with the lever. I could only dance all through, I guess, for you had the machine under control. Where you said the machine, Ellen, for without you I should have been helpless."

At it is. It's sold for enough to retire me forever and make me pretty independent besides." He yawned sleepily and stretched himself.

"It's time more than that, Hiram," she said, "for you've been asleep on her pedicure eyes.

"Then I must be asked. And then, looking down into her upturned face, he bent and kissed her unresistingly, answered his own query. "Settled the first and last quarrel we ever had eh?"

Ellen nodded assent. "And about that scan the hill of a life may be settled," she whispered with a little recollection of her copious theft, and then, looking down into her husband's face, she smiled at the memory of reconciliation they forgot the white flight and the fortune it had made for them.

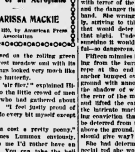
NEW TALES THAT ARE TOLD

The Peculiar Professor.

Woodrow Wilson, the head of Princeton, has become less and more famous as a presidential possibility. He's a person of his own peculiar ideas, and to his story telling skill.

Mr. Wilson at one of his receptions said of absentmindedness:

"While I was a student at the University of Virginia we had a delightful



"No, professor," answered the student, one of professor there about whose absentmindedness many stories were afloat.

"Sometimes he would come right into the professor's house and bid me to be seated. On one occasion I got to thinking of the time and when I looked at my watch I found that it was almost 1 o'clock.

"As is his dreamy, once struck way he pottered about the room he heard a noise, looked at me, and with a puzzled frown:

"'Say, one, is any one there?'

"'No, professor,' replied the burglar in a very low voice, with the utmost respect.

"'Then I will,' said the professor, 'I was positive I heard some one under the bed.'"

The answer.

Mrs. Amelia E. Barr, the noted novelist, was addressing a group of beautiful girls at her home in Orange, N. J.

"The girl graduates," she said, "receive their diplomas with the determination to find out the why and wherefore of everything. It is a fine determination, but life is very complex, and most of the questions we ask ourselves in hours of ways and wherefores will run into the intolerable.

"A bedlabber, you know, evening at a soiree, said to a young girl and a soldier:

"'What is it that you call that spot on the moon, sir soldier?'

"'Whatever else,' the soldier answered, 'would you call it?'"

AN UNAPPRECIATED INTERRUPTION.

Candid Delinquent of a Boyhood Startles the Congregation.

Mark Twiby tells that one time he was the boss of a carpet weaving shop in a town in central Kansas where there was a church of every creed but one. The town was named Tolp. He was a citizen of Tolp, and was very much interested in every kind of whisky, of which he had a generous supply in his cellar. This man was attending one of the revival meetings that were held in the town scoring away form of vice and raising the moral standard generally, when

"Woe to the drunkard! Woe to the drunkard!" was the text from which the discourse was to be delivered.

Mr. Twiby heard his text and tugged at his whiskers, and the fact that he was interested in the whole proposition more marked. "Go-go-goes the drunkard," continued the preacher.

"Go-go-goes the drunkard," echoed Mr. Twiby.

The preacher went on: "Woe to the drunkard, the lover of wine, for he thirsts!" Woe to the thirster! His thirst shall be unquenchable!"

Again did Twig get to his feet. His mouth opened as he rose, his eyes rolled, and pointing with his arms and fingers. "Go-go-goes the drunkard!" he cried. "Go-go-goes!"

"Go-go-goes the drunkard, Brother Twiby," said a deacon of the church, "but we are not interested in the every fond of music, and it annoyed the preacher somewhat. He came to see the institution of the fashionably part of the audience.

"One night I found him sopping here and needed him where he was.

"I've been in the opera," he replied. "What did you hear and see?

"I heard," said Mr. Carlisle, "that the lead was very fine, and that the voices, young Knickerbocker-death has been a great success. Mrs. Astor and Mr. Hardig is gradually growing in favor of it."

DRESKEL LOST IN THE AIR

Philadelphia, Nov. 2.—Accustomed to see a flying machine pass gracefully down the Delaware river from Camden, the Aeronautical Society of Trenton is the air at the former place, got twisted and landed in Trenton.

The homeward flight from the point of landing after his record breaking altitude flight of Wednesday, when he went up 9970 feet, was to have been the last fixture of the closing day of the aviation meet at Point Breeze.

Dreskel circled the field at an altitude of about five feet, then breast steering and struck off in the wrong direction. Up in the air, however, he has had learning, and in making a turn went further around than he expected. He had been up but a short while when he saw the river below him and headed about him to Point Breeze. He saw a river and thought he was right, as directed, but it was the Delaware that appeared under him and the planters carried him further away from his destination with every turn of the propeller.

When he saw a city he thought he was all right, but he missed the Ionic city hall tower and, realizing that he was lost, planed to earth. The city was Trenton. It was too late for him to resume his trip when he learned his mistake, so he hopped up cigarettes for the mosquitoes, telephoned to Graham-White and took a train back to Philadelphia.

COTTON FRAUD NETS $1,000,000

Alabama Firm Used Bogus Bills of Lading.

Washington, Nov. 31.—Committing on the arrest by postoffice inspectors of John W. Knight, senior member of the cotton brokerage firm of Knight, Yancey & Co., of Decatur, Ala., Postmaster General Hitchcock said that the operations of the concern, through alleged fraudulent use of the mails, would probably exceed $1,000,000.

The alleged fraud was committed, he said, by the use of bogus bills of lading covering fictitious shipments. Mr. Hitchcock asserted that the false reports of shipments to the government bureaus and companies of insurance were procured through certain railway and marine clerks.

These postoffice frauds were criticised were accepted as indicating the breadth of the allegations and that the bills of lading thus accompanied were supplanted by note drafts, were presented for payment from the foreign importers thereof on delivery. The cotton was purchased, Mr. Hitchcock said, never arrived.

Mr. Hitchcock declared the transactions of Knight, Yancey & Co. were similar to those of another concern of Dreskel, Mont., whose methods were recently indicated on evidence procured by postoffice inspectors.

The postmaster general declared that the work of the investigators developed that the two concerns had an understanding by which they exchanged drafts, each holding those of the other until the other to accept rush drafts, and that together they committed frauds aggregating between $4,000,000 and $6,000,000."

DOUBLE MURDER ENDS DIVORCE SUIT

Husband Kills His Wife and Her Chum.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 31.—As a sequel to the divorce suit, a double murder and subsequent suicide occurred here.

Mrs. Ethel Ricketts and her chum, Mrs. Bertha Lyon, both were tragic dead at the hands of the former's husband, Frank Ricketts, after which Ricketts turned the revolver upon himself and died, but the bullet only passed through the rim of his hat without leaving victim. By this time the weapon had been emptied and the desperate man was called to carry out the balance of his purpose.

The double tragedy took place in the rooms of Mrs. Ricketts and Mrs. Britton in the Ricketts block, which are one-storyrooms in the tragedy.

The tragedy that followed Reno in rapid succession soon attracted thousands to the hallway who were in the place and the police were called to the scene. Ricketts, who is the author of the tragedy, but still alive, was found in the hallway outside the room, revolver loaded, and was arrested for murder. What occurred is not known at this time, but following the reports of the revolver a bloody scene was presented and the woman lay dead on the floor.

Mrs. Britton had either dressed to go out upon the street or else had just returned from a visit. She had on her coat, hat and gloves, being dressed in street attire. Mrs. Britton lay dead in the room, a bullet having entered the abdomen, and another the chest, the body and out of the back. Mr. Ricketts was found in the hallway by a neighbor, who, with a chair, struck him a stunning blow, thinking that a desperate struggle had taken place.

GEORGE PARKER AGAIN AT WORK?

Man whose Clever Schemes Deprived Gettysburg People of Money Last Spring May be Arrested in Baltimore.

That George C. Parker who posed as a Sunday school worker in Gettysburg and a number of Gettysburg people last spring may have been operating in Baltimore and Washington for a few weeks is the opinion of many who have met with him, and a dispatch from the former city telling of the arrest there of one Bruce H. West who posed as a prize and secured considerable money. Custead Gibbons declares the man a fraud after a brief visit here with him in the presence of an officer. Bruce's method of operating is in a large measure similar to that of Parker.

He is alleged to have stolen some black checks in Baltimore and taking them to Washington used them in a series of daring swindles. He is also charged with having posed a number of worthless checks in Baltimore stores. He was a student at Notre Dame College, near Guilford.

He was arrested in his Baltimore room after the establishment from which he is said to have stolen the checks had received word saying that he was a Catholic priest and demanding that he be arrested. He was arrested as a Catholic priest and when arrested in Baltimore was so garbed. He is said to have had a traveling pass and a letterhead commander in the United States Navy and a United States Naval Reserve. He is charged in Washington with having passed a worthless check for $1200 and one for $500; also for the larceny of blank pad stamped orders, five of which he is said to have appropriated.

The Baltimore police have a description of Bruce Parker and they are furnished of that individual's operations in this city, where he seems to be living made to see if descriptions of the two were coincide.

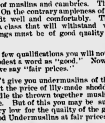
Good Undermuslins at Fair Prices

Good Undermuslins! The adjective is a broad one too often abused. Good undermuslins must be made of the right grade of muslins and cambrics. There must be no skimping. On the contrary emphasis of cut should rule. They must fit well and comfortably. The workmanship they must be of a class that will withstand wash and wear. The trimmings must be of good quality and up-to-date patterns.

Quite a few qualifications you will note to be to be covered by an modest a word as "good." Now you will understand why we say "fair prices."

We can't give you undermuslins of the class as specified above at the price of lily-made shoddy-kind. We refuse to handle the shoddy-together muslins you have met at any price. But of this you may be sure. Our prices are low, very low for the quality of the goods we offer.

For good Undermuslins at fair prices call upon us.



Scene from "THE WOLF" Walter Theatre, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 30.

Prices 35c, 50c, 75c and $1.00.
